

Properties list:

packaging as a new medium
end-user packaging
adults
range of products
extra-use of packaging
concept
beer
alcohols and spirits
labels and sleeves
bottle
glass and ceramics
contemporary unusual visual association
photo to evoke
limited edition packaging

Beck's moved artist-label beers into mass-production for the first time in partnership with the RCA, giving students and alumni of the RCA the opportunity to create original labels for the iconic green bottle. Beck's beer unveiled a limited-edition collection of labels showcasing the work of four emerging contemporary artists - all of them RCA alumni.

The Beck's Canvas labels are shown above from left to right:

* Charlotte Bracegirdle (Painting Graduate, 2006) - Pintora is taken from a self-portrait by Elizabeth Louise Vigée Le Brun which hangs in the National Gallery. The artist has doctored the image to remove the woman's head and hands.

* Simon Cunningham (Photography Graduate, 2007) - Duckrabbit is a photo-collage which explores ideas of perception - do you see a duck or a rabbit?

* Tom Price (Sculpture Graduate, 2006) - Head 6 is an image of a sculpture of an African man's head.

* Riitta Ikonen (CA&D Graduate, 2008) - Let's Stick Together is a photograph taken of a person's eye with a tiny figure perched on the eyelashes.

The labels are also featured in Beck's latest television advertising campaign.

Reference: <http://www.rca.ac.uk/Default.aspx?ContentID=502012&GroupID=502011&Contentwithinthissection&OldContentID=502011>

Credits:

Country: United Kingdom

Year: 2008

School: Royal College of Art (London, UK)

Artists: Charlotte Bracegirdle, Simon Cunningham, Tom Price, Riitta Ikonen

This document was created by www.packagingdesignarchive.org

Original web page: http://www.packagingdesignarchive.org/archive/pack_details/1575

Other images: