HEATHCOTE II WINE

Properties list:

identity by typography contemporary cardboard and paper glass and ceramics bottle wine new product single product end-user packaging adults

A flooded wine market full of quirky Australian wine brands. A little known area of Heathcote, a new wine region with no recognition but producing great quality Shiraz. We aptly named it Heathcote II to reference the two experts and reinforce the provenance message. This was expressed as a very simple identity through the roman numeral ?II? and the ?Heathcote? word joining it to create a ?H? mark. Through the thick white paper label a cleaver diecut ?II? expose the black bottle underneath creating a stunning visual layer to a very simp le brand mark. This simple identity had enormous standout and added a real confidence to an otherwise unknown region. Since its conception this wine has had an abundance of national and international success, distribution through Australia?s finest boutique cellars and restaurants, new export markets and local heroes.

Reference: http://yellobrands.com

Credits:

Country: Australia

Year: 2009 Agency: Yello

This document was created by www.packagingdesignarchive.org

 $Original\ web\ page:\ http://www.packagingdesignarchive.org/archive/pack_details/1926$

Other images: